DEMANDING OUR AUTHOR.

The Investigating Committee on alleged public printing frauds, have, through their chairman, demanded to know who furnished sketches of the evidence which have appeared in the CHRONICLE. Their request was instantly complied with, and they now have the information. What next?

Jail Delivery at Maryville.

The prisoners in Maryville jail made their escape Wednesday night. They succeeded in cutting the chain to the cage door, which is a very heavy one, cutting two large, seasoned oak planks, and pulled the brick out of the wall at the roof to make a hole large enough to escape. Then, fastening quilts together attached them to the inside of the room, in which condition the quilts were found next morning and the prisoners gone. There was one confined on a charge of murder, one for malicious stabbing and two for larceny. Presbyterian Synod meets here to-day.

A Bow.

Ben. Camp had a rumper with a colored man in a bar opposite Judge Brown's agricultural warehouse on Gay street, yesterday. The latter was arrested, but by some cause Camp was not, though his arrest was authorized by one of the police, who deputized a bystander to do so. The trial was postponed till two o'clock this afternoon, before Esquire Journoison.

A Fable.

MESSRS. EDITORS: Once on a time, a Muscovy duck found himself in the midst of a drove of horses, when he looked impudently into the horses' faces and said: "Let us be particular and not tramp on each other's feet." Moral:—The duck was the only one whose feet were in danger of being hurt.

APPLICATION.

The people of Tennessee have been greatly wronged by official plunderers, and among others by the State Printers. Not long since, I published an exposition of their frauds on the Treasury, whereupon they complained to the Legislature and requested to be "investigated." Accordingly, an "investigation" was ordered. The committee charged with this duty requested me to attend and prove my allegations. To this request, I promptly responded, and offered to examine the accused parties themselves. But, lo! Colonel Burch, one of the accused, for himself and as counsel for his partners in plunder, objected to the proposition, argued the question at length, and insisted that under the Constitution an accused party could not be made to give evidence against or to criminate himself. This objection, coming under the circumstances and from the parties it did, from men who had requested the investigation, was unexpected and a "little peculiar," the meaning of which is, "Let us not tramp on each other's feet."

But the objection was overruled. The Committee held that the principle contended for by Col. Burch was a privilege personal to the witness, and stated that if any question was asked, the answer to which would, in the judgment of the witness, tend to "criminate" him, or furnish a link in a chain of testimony tending to his conviction of a criminal offense, he, the witness, might claim his privilege and decline to answer. This was a sound exposition of the law, and under this ruling Messrs. Griffith, Jones & Purvis, three of the firm of Jones, Purvis & Co., were severally introduced and examined. But none of them knew any material fact. Neither of them could tell how much paper or how many ems or tokens were contained in the "journals" or in any other "job" done by them for the State, to which their attention was called; nor could they tell, except in one single instance, from whom they bought the paper, what they paid for it, or state its reasonable market value at the time it was used. They were, also, unable to explain or reconcile the discrepancies which appeared on the face of their accounts. Such utter obliviousness to facts which was supposed to be within their personal knowledge, &c., excited surprise and the same was published for the information of the people. Whereupon how was raised, to which the publication of the testimony made was "partial" and "garbled." It is not pretended that the testimony published is not substantially true as given by the witnesses, but that there were other facts deferred to them which would soften or mitigate the public judgment towards them. Now, if this is the only ground of complaint, the injustice might have been remedied by the publication of the whole of their testimony. The accused parties own and control two newspapers and could have published all the evidence, if they would. But, instead of asking for permission to vindicate themselves in this way, they have gone mouthing to the committee and implored them to prevent "us from treading on each other's feet."

Messrs. Editors, my feet are not liable to be hurt. I am not only willing but anxious to lay all the evidence published. But I predict the accused parties will never publish their own accounts on file with the Comptroller. These are conclusive of the frauds alleged and will never be exposed to the public eye through the columns of the Banner or Union and American. "Let us be particular and not tramp on each other's feet." JNO. BAXTER.

TRIBUTE OF RESPECT.

Meeting of the Knoxville Board of Trade.

Action in Regard to the Death of Mr. Jas. H. Cowan.

A meeting of the Board of Trade was held, at their Rooms on yesterday morning to take action on the death of Mr. James H. Cowan. The meeting was called to order by Capt. W. W. Woodruff, who explained the object of their presence, whereupon, on motion, Henry Ault, Esq., was called to the chair and Mr. H. L. Merdian, Christian Society, to the secretary.

On motion of Mr. J. W. Gant, a committee of five was appointed to draft resolutions expressive of the sense of the meeting, and the following gentlemen were designated by the chair: J. A. Rayl, Wm. Williams, A. L. Gillespie, H. Martin and W. W. Woodruff.

The meeting then adjourned until four o'clock in the afternoon.

At the designated hour the Board reassembled, when the following preamble and resolutions were read and adopted unanimously:

WHEREAS, In the dispensation of Providence, one of our most respected and highly esteemed citizens and business men, James H. Cowan, has been called to that other and higher life, the sustaining hope of all good and just men in this world;

AND WHEREAS, It is eminently fitting that a life so distinguished for those virtues which so well befit and adorn the business man and citizen, and upon the practice of which the happiness and well-being of the individual and of society so much depend, should, as a matter of respect to the deceased as well as of profit to the living, receive at our hands some formal recognition;

Resolved, therefore, That we, his associates and fellow-citizens, have met together for the purpose of offering this last and tribute of respect to his memory, and thus publicly manifesting the sincere regard which we entertain for him, in coming with us to the citizens, to whom he was alike endeared, for a life-time practice of patient, persevering industry, courteous bearing, a sound business judgment, a high sense of probity, and, above all, for those Christian virtues which made him an ornament to the church of which he was a member; and though plain, unassuming and unostentatious in his manner, constituted him a gentleman of the truest, highest type, and made him altogether a bright and shining example of those qualities which do the chief honor to the citizen, the business man, the gentleman and the Christian, and that we recognize as the distinguishing feature in Mr. Cowan's life his Christian character, and that character found its best expression in his life-long labor in the Sabbath School of the church to which he belonged.

Resolved, That as a well merited tribute of respect to the part of the citizens of Knoxville, to one who has contributed so largely in building up its trade, as well as for the many virtues by which his whole life was so eminently distinguished, we respectfully request that all business houses and schools be closed between the hours of 2 and 5 o'clock, P. M.

Resolved, That we offer to the surviving members of his family the assurance of our sincere sympathy in the loss which they sustain, and that we share with them the grief which will be touching the heart of all who knew him, falls with heaviest weight on those who knew him in the dear relations of family and kindred.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be furnished to his surviving family.

J. A. RAYL, Chairman.

Wm. WILLIAMS, A. L. GILLESPIE, H. MARTIN, W. W. WOODRUFF, Committee.

A. S. Hudgins, Esq., made some remarks which were very interesting. He said that he had known the deceased for more than forty years, and remembered when as a boy attending Sabbath School, he had received lessons from Mr. Cowan, the teacher of his class. His interest in the Sunday School work was keen, and until his last illness. During the terrible epidemic which raged in this city in 1858, Mr. Cowan had acted the part of the good Samaritan; he had paid the last rites to beloved relatives of his own family, besides administering to the necessities of numerous others.

Mr. Rayl said that he had been raised with Mr. Cowan and could bear testimony to his many Christian virtues, and also to his zeal as a worker in that great auxiliary to the church—the Sunday School.

Other gentlemen also spoke in eulogistic terms of the character of the deceased, after which the meeting adjourned.

Sinking Fast.

Pale, miserable, discouraged, without relish for food, without energy enough for exertion, yet with no acute pain, or other specific indication of disease, how do we see feeble invalids fading as it were out of life without any apparent cause. We say of them that they are "sinking fast," or "sinking gradually," as the case may be. But there is no good reason why they should sink at all. Persons in this dead-alive state simply want invigorating and vitalizing. Nature, in a state of torpor, demands help. Bring out the reserve of vitality in the system, break the nervous tone, the stomach, break up the morbid trances of body and mind with a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It can be done. It has been done in thousands of instances. The effect upon the enervated frame is electric. Never give up however languid and broken down. Remember that for the exhausted, the debilitated, the desponding, the powerful vegetable restorative is a genuine elixir. It is a more stimulant that provokes a transient flash of vigor in the system, and then leaves it in a more depressed condition than before. It removes the cause of debility by altering the secretions, and regulating the action of the internal organs, as well as reinforcing them. It is a particularly valuable medicine at this season, because it is an antidote to the malaria which produces intermittent fever, bilious colic and other disorders of the bowels prevalent in the fall.
